Gayle Dean is our newsletter editor and writes, “I enjoy reading, writing with my Thursday writers group, and seeing my flowers at home in bloom. I was born and raised in Manchester, GA, and moved to Columbus about 25 years ago when I married Les.”

“I graduated from Columbus College and obtained an MS in psychology from West Ga., and then worked over 25 years with people challenged by a developmental disability.”

“I enjoy spending time with my family – husband Les, daughter Jennifer, son David and two grandchildren, Ryan and Hannah, who all live in Columbus. Three other grandchildren and 2 great grandchildren live out of town.”

“A member of CALL since 2014, I really enjoy the mental challenges the various classes bring, learning about so many different topics, and of course, the fellowship and our trips.”

Plan now to attend our CALL End of the Year Celebration, honoring our wonderful facilitators for the past year. It's also a great time to socialize and have fun!

Please wear your name tags! If you find that you are unable to attend the banquet please let Gail Stafford know as soon as possible at 706-577-1892 or eggs15@knology.net. CALL has to pay for all reservations whether you attend or not. So please let us know if you are not able to attend after you have made reservations. Only those who have a reservation will be able to attend.

Members who signed up for the Swamp Fox Day Tour on Wednesday 3 May will need to board the bus at the Elizabeth Bradley Turner parking lot by 9:00 a.m. Lunch will follow in the Magnolia Room across the street from the brewery. We should be back by 3:30 p.m.

"Named after the legendary militia man, Sir Francis Marion, whose cunning instincts and crafty repertoire earned him the nickname "The Swamp Fox", we see a little bit of Sir Francis' qualities in each of our premium small-batch spirits. All of our spirits, which include a rye whiskey, a malt whiskey, moonshine, white whiskey, and a bourbon in the future, come with their own little story in addition to being of the highest quality."
